Roundtable Questions

Question 1

In specialty insurance, where will firms need to invest/focus in order to benefit from and scale AI, to ensure they don't get stuck in continuous experimentation? Data quality, governance, talent, technology, leadership, or something else?

Question 2

As competition increases and client expectations rise, how can London Market firms use AI and better data to improve underwriting and pricing without losing the expert judgement, relationships, and trust that define specialty insurance?

Question 3

Data is now central to how the London Market trades and competes. From your perspective, what are the most important data quality challenges firms need to solve now if they want to be fit for the future?
